WHY I BUILT PARWAH

The 11pm phone call every one of us knows.

A short story about my parents, distance, and a family app that keeps everyone close.

THE CALL

"Sab theek hai, beta."
And the call ends.

You hear the words. You do not hear the week: the missed check-up, the bill, the scam call, the knee on the stairs.

So many of us live in one city while our parents live in another. Some of us in another country.

THE REAL PROBLEM

Caring for parents is a group project with no real place to do it.

- The doctor's number is in one phone
- The insurance papers are in a drawer back home
- One sibling remembers everything, and is tired
- The family WhatsApp group is full of forwards

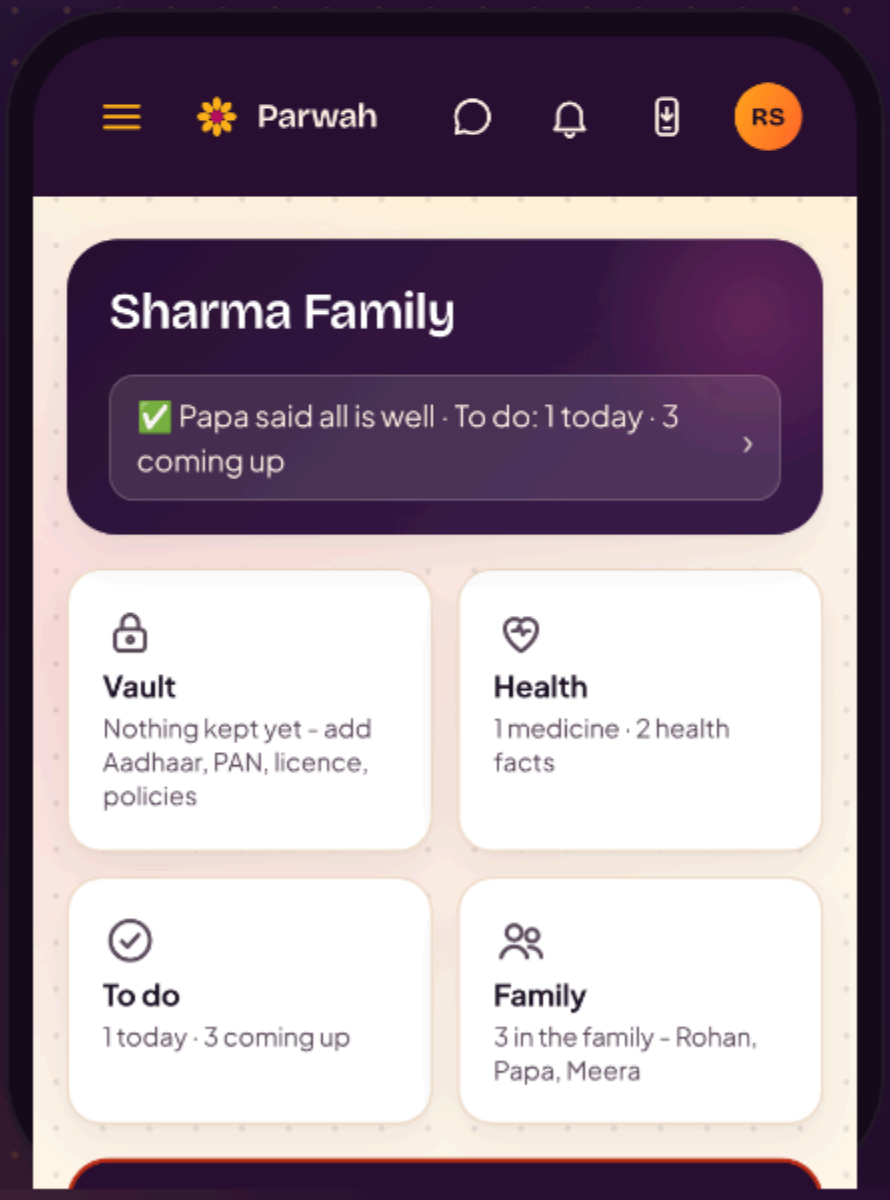

Parwah gives the family one place to share it.

WHAT PARWAH IS

One family app. Parents in charge.

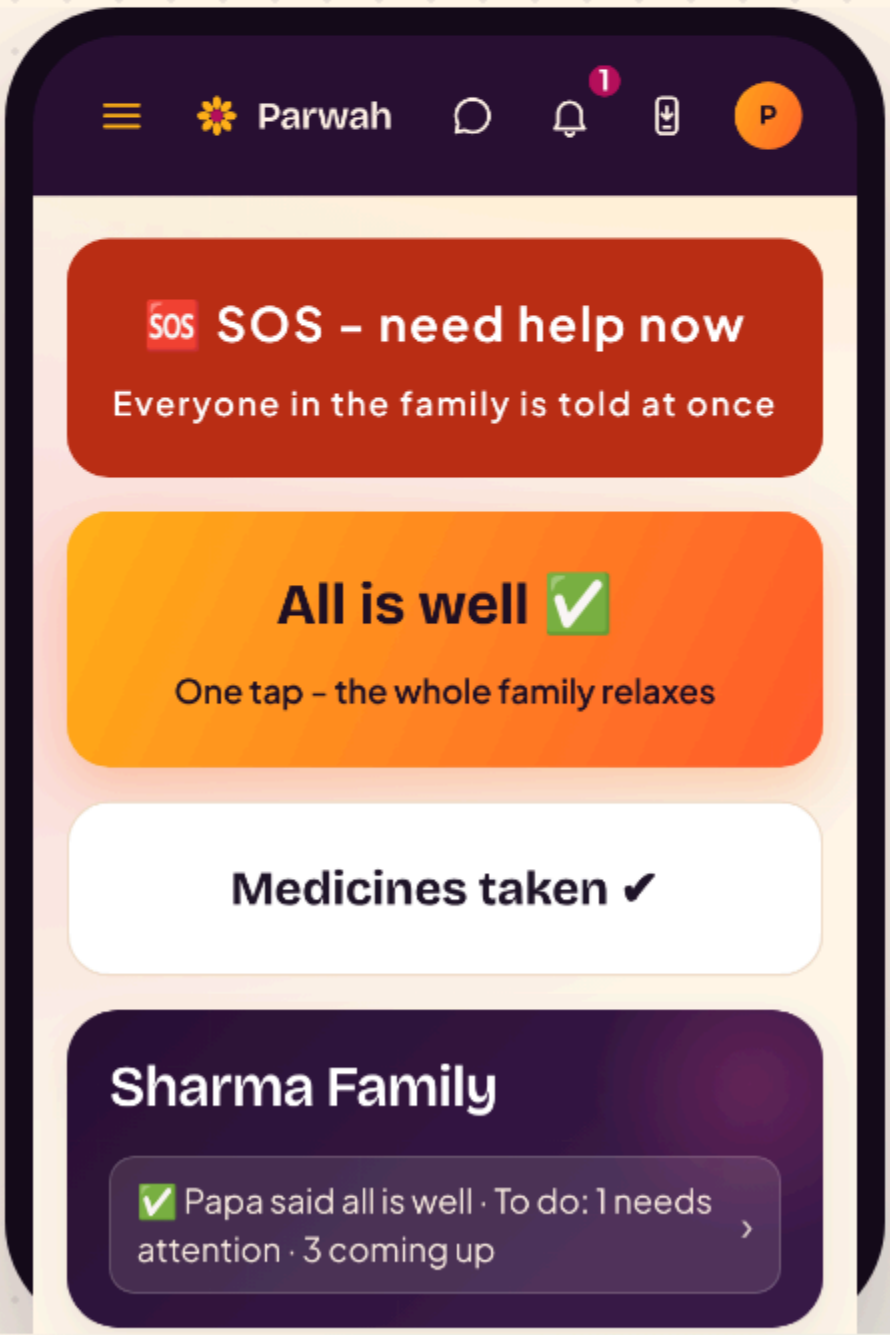

Check-ins, to-dos, doctors, medicines, papers and an emergency card, shared by the whole family.

ON PAPA'S PHONE

Three big buttons.
Nothing else to learn.

SOS, All is well, and Medicines taken. A calm, large-text mode they can read.

CONSENT FIRST

Together, with their yes.

- Parents switch on location sharing themselves, and stopping deletes it
- Nobody joins the family without someone saying yes
- ID papers keep only the last 4 digits
- Ekta, our helper, checks scam messages for free

Reassurance, never surveillance.

FREE FOR FAMILIES

Set it up together this Diwali.

Open it in your phone's browser and add it to your Home Screen. Invite a sibling. Then invite Mummy-Papa.
